$ Pricing Tips

1. Research eBay sold listings — Search eBay for your item → filter by "Sold" to see what people actually paid, not asking prices.
  2. Price for a quick sale, not retail — 25–50% of retail is the sweet spot. People come for deals — honor that expectation.
  3. Use round numbers — $5, $10, $25 makes checkout fast and avoids coin-hunting delays.
  4. Bundle deals boost revenue — Group small items in a "fill a bag for $5" bin to clear clutter and move volume.
  5. Let Markdown Cycles do the work — Turn on automatic Day 2 markdowns in your FindA.Sale settings — no manual repricing needed.

■ Day-Of Rundown

|            |                                                                               |
|------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 6:00 AM    | Arrive 90 min before open. Set up tables, signs, and QR codes.                |
| 7:00 AM    | Final price check — every item needs a tag or sticker.                        |
| 7:30 AM    | Open your FindA.Sale dashboard. Mark your sale as live if not already.        |
| 8:00 AM    | Doors open. Greet shoppers and direct them to high-value items.               |
| Ongoing    | Use the POS tab in FindA.Sale to mark items sold and accept payments.         |
| Midday     | Consolidate sparse tables — a full table feels like better deals.             |
| 1 Hour Out | Enable holds for hot items. Announce closing-time markdowns on social.        |
| Close      | Mark remaining items sold, archived, or carry-over. Run your earnings report. |

★ Post-Sale

1. Run the Settlement Wizard — In your FindA.Sale dashboard → Settlement → generate a full earnings breakdown.
2. Generate a donation receipt — For unsold items, use the Donation Receipt tool to produce a tax-ready document.
3. Export to QuickBooks — Download your sales CSV and import directly into QuickBooks for clean bookkeeping.
4. Ask for a review — Send a follow-up to your attendees — great reviews bring more shoppers to your next sale.
